3 Rebels Named To District IV All-Star Team

Three Appomattox Football players, two Juniors and one Senior, were picked for the first annual GROUP II, DISTRICT IV All - Star Football team.

The select group, which was picked by the Lynchburg sports writers in cooperation with the coaches of the district schools fielding varsity football teams, boasts three members from both Brookville and Appomattox while Amherst County was next in line with a pair of gridmen.

Anchoring the backfield at the signal - calling spot is Jimmy Torrence, of Appomattox. The 6 ft. 165 pound junior is regarded by his coach as a good college prospect.

The two versatile ends are Appomattox's James Whitehead and Central's Bonnie Graham.

Both were called upon to fill in the backfield because of injuries in the season and responded by completing a number of passes.

Whitehead, although he failed to hit the scoring column, caught quite a few passes to spark numerous Rebel drives.

A Junior student, the 5-8, 153 pound senior also did all the punting for the Rebels, averaging almost 32 yards per kick. He had the ability of booting the ball out of bounds in rather decisive places. Against Altavista he had a punt go out at the one-foot line and another drop dead on the three - yard line.

Carter presents the team with its biggest player, and one of the most feared in the district. A junior he stands 6-2 and weighs 195 pounds.

Few teams attempted to run through his side of the line and the story is told that when Altavista coach Harold Drumheller read in the program that he was only a freshman that he was considering dropping Appomattox for a couple years. However, it was a fleeting error as Carter is a junior.

Bragg regards him as one of the best in the area. He has good speed for his size and excells on both offense and defense.

He averages between 20 and 25 tackles per game and is an excellent downfield blocker.

The All-Star squad averages 170.2 pounds, breaking down to 174.2 on the line and 166.2 in the backfield.

Fourteen other players were named to the honorable mention list.

Considerable interest in the subject of Cancer and its control has already been evidenced in last year's successful drive for funds for the American Cancer Society.

Mr. William Manley, field representative for the American Cancer Society will present a film in Appomattox on Tuesday, Nov. 27 at 7:30. Place is the AHS library. This film deals with ways in which a Cancer Council may be formed.

National 4-H Congress To Start Sunday

About 1,500 of the nation's best 4-H Club members will pack their bags and take off for Chicago and the 41st National 4-H Club Congress. They will be joined by some 500 leading business men and women who support 4-H work, state and county 4-H leaders, educators and 4-H guests from abroad.

The congress convenes on Sunday, November 25, in the Grand Ballroom of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, headquarters for the week-long event. But delegates begin arriving as early as Friday. They travel by bus, plane, train, and some from all 50 states, Puerto Rico and a dozen foreign countries.

Keynoter at the Sunday afternoon session will be a former 4-H Club member, and one who this year is honored nationally as a 4-H alumnus. He is the Honorable Buford E. Ellington, governor of Tennessee.

"Citizenship in Action" is the 1962 congress theme. The principle speaker on the theme will be Dr. Glenn Olds, president of Springfield College (Massachusetts).

The young people are looking forward to a week crammed with many "firsts" such as meeting prominent U. S. citizens, seeing the internationally known museums of Chicago, listening to the 106-piece Chicago Symphony Orchestra, enjoying the companionship of fellow 4-H'ers from north, south, east and west.

Perhaps the most valued personal reward will be the fact that every single one of the 1,500 boys and girls will have all expenses paid. This highly regarded prize includes trailers and buses, and includes the worst of men and the best of men. Saying Yes does not mean doing this or that to attract God's notice and to get Him over on our side. It means just taking hold of the hand of God, it means accepting, not forcing, not buying, just accepting as a free and marvelous Gift, the mercy of the eternal God.

But how much of this could be explained to the jailer in less than an hour? How can we be so sure he became a Christian? The writer of Acts never does actually say that the jailer was saved. But he certainly was. Let the reader study the story in Acts 16 once again: why can we be sure?

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

Sunday School Lesson

Devotional Reading: Psalm 51.

"Yes" To God

Lesson for November 25, 1962

If we weren't so used to the Christian religion, we would be all the time astonished by it. Here for example is a church full of people who have come together to worship God. The man who leads the worship reads to them out of an ancient book, centuries old in fact, the holy book of all these people. And what is the minister reading about? His message? Somewhere in the 318,000 churches of America, it is a safe guess that every single week some congregation listens to a message about something that happened in a jail. That jailer has been to church (or his story has been read in church) oftener than many a respectable citizen.

Unlikely Case

We know for a fact that many more respectable people than this jailer became Christians during the first years of the Christian religion. Then why is space given to the tale of this one man? Besides, why is this story of the jailer told and re-told so often? One reason is, this is the story that shows how simple a thing it is to be a Christian. If it was possible for that jailer, it is possible for anybody.

Can you imagine that jailer coming to your church and asking to join it? What would people say? They would say he couldn't find congenial friends in your church. How many jailers are on your church roll, by the way, how many prison guards? People would even say he was too old a man to change; that he beats his prisoners, he doesn't even provide them with meals, he doesn't let them lie down at night. A brutal, cruel, ignorant, low-grade character, this particular city jailer.

"Yes" to Jesus

Like a good many others, this man didn't set out to be a Christian. The question he asked, in excitement and terror, "What must I do to be saved?" was not a religious question for him. Under the law, he was responsible for his prisoners, and he was sure they must have all escaped. This meant losing his job, it would certainly mean that he would be beaten, and probably mean that he would be sentenced to death. He had seen too many men tortured and killed to want to be a victim himself. So he cries out, What must I do to be saved? Paul knew. Paul had been saved. He had heard God's call out under the sky. Now this jailer was going to hear God's call in a dark jail smelling of rats and human blood. Paul knew the man need ed to be saved from something worse than being executed. He needed to be saved from his sins, saved from himself. So he tells him a real piece of news. It was something that had to be explained: and Paul went on to explain it. Tut the thing was simple: "Believe in the Lord Jesus." As we can put it in other words, that meant saying "Yes" to what Jesus was and did. It would mean more and more as life would go on. But the jailer could begin where all Christians begin: by saying YES to Jesus.

"Yes" to God

Paul's own Christian life had been with two questions, and we may suspect that he led that jailer to ask them too. "Who art Thou?" and "What will Thou have me to do?" Saying Yes to Jesus means accepting him as the very grace of God in person—the love of God walking on two feet. Saying Yes to Jesus is accepting him as the One who gave Himself for us all, and that includes jailers and jailed, it includes the worst of men and the best of men. Saying Yes does not mean doing this or that to attract God's notice and to get Him over on our side. It means just taking hold of the hand of God, it means accepting, not forcing, not buying, just accepting as a free and marvelous Gift, the mercy of the eternal God.

But how much of this could be explained to the jailer in less than an hour? How can we be so sure he became a Christian? The writer of Acts never does actually say that the jailer was saved. But he certainly was. Let the reader study the story in Acts 16 once again: why can we be sure?

William E. Carpenter, Pastor.

Last Sabbath, Nov. 17, was a very special day in the Appomattox Seventh - Day Adventist Church. The Carpenter Family House Church members and other visitors joined in the services.

Pastor Carpenter began his remarks with these words, "This special day is a summation of all the readings for the Week of Prayer. We need to bring with us to the local church in this special message entitled "Take Heed Unto Thyself" by Reuben R. Figuhr, President of the World General Conference of Seventh - Day Adventist." He called our attention to the 21st chapter of Luke, v. 24 where Jesus says — "Take heed unto yourselves, lest at anytime your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkeness and cares of this life, so that day come upon you unawares." Jesus here urges us to turn the microscope of minute and critical inspection upon ourselves, upon our individual hearts. There is danger, that the Christian will be carried away by worldly interest while apparently faithfully practicing his religion.

The peril we are warned against is self-deception. This can be most insidious of all deceptions. The admonition is to look to ourselves, lest the things we cherish deceive us, and lull us into a perilous state of spiritual apathy. In verse 36 — "Watch Ye Therefore" Jesus continues — "and pray always that ye may escape all these things. "The final events are fast closing in upon this world. It is no longer a figure of speech, to say men's hearts are failing them, for fear, as in verse 26. This is the actual situation today. There is but one way to look with confidence — upward — In verse 28 Jesus says Look up, and lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh." So our task today is to warn others and prepare ourselves for the glorious appearing of our Lord from heaven.

At the close of the service, Pastor Carpenter conducted a Baptism. Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Holland, of Farmville, were received into church fellowship by letter from the First Richmond Church of Seventh - Day Adventist.

The church services will be conducted at the usual hours each Sabbath.

The invitation to come is extended to all.

Darkleaf

1932, Thanksgiving Day came upon a Thursday, and it was November 24. Oh, how hard we worked to get our paper ready, and get the mail sacks delivered to the post office, and by noon we set forth for destiny in a jalopy of a vehicle which had confounded everyone who had seen it that a car that old could move. We had been invited to the Class Reunion at my College, but we were late and missed seeing anyone who even partially resembled anyone I ever knew. Richmond was playing William and Mary. I have forgotten who won, but we drove forward to Middlesex County, where my father was pastor, and that's the date Mother Brightleaf and I got married! Thirty years ago! What a lucky guy I was!

* * *

A good resolution for anyone who uses a camera, is to see for sure that all prints are adequately dated and labeled. Lots of people have old snapshots and old pictures, not labeled or dated. Picture of kith and kin, or of schoolmates, etc. soon lose all value unless they are identified. Last Sunday afternoon at dinner, he's been turned into a wonderful occasion in the home by getting out the old family pictures. And while we are at it, we suggest that every home should have a family Bible, and in the provided places, keep a full record of all births, deaths, marriages, etc.

One of my dearest friends loves to hunt. But, when the season came in on Mondays of this week he said, "Something I said something about it being just too crowded on opening day" and that's one would come!

Tip to come all: Check the pipes that lead into and out of your house. If they are not "tight" mice will waggle in! With old - fashioned traps, I can report that nine mice a week were with us. But, thanks to my friend J. Lloyd Hudson, we spotted the trouble and prevented the trespassers were using, and so now I have four mice traps for sale!
